Spanish and Public Health, BA (Boston)

The combined Bachelor of Arts in Spanish and Public Health integrates study of the Spanish language with study of public health. Students hone their proficiency in the production and comprehension of the Spanish language and apply this knowledge to explore aspects of Hispanic culture, literature, and history. At the same time, students work to develop skills and apply theory to public health approaches for addressing poor health outcomes. Students practice the transcultural skills and linguistic competence to communicate and participate in public health initiatives and interventions in one of the world's major languages and with a deep transnational understanding of practices across the two languages. Students in this major are not permitted to declare the Spanish minor.
